

The Chartered Society of Physiotherapy

CSP Awards 2010

We are delighted to announce that we have won the highest accolade in the Physiotherapy profession. The CSP Awards are given annually to individuals and/or teams deserving special recognition for their contribution to services and the well being of patients. Over one hundred Physiotherapists attend the fourth annual Chartered Society of Physiotherapy (CSP) Awards ceremony at the Hotel Russell, on 12 November 2010.

Our Fit for Work Team won the 'Enhancing occupational health and keeping people 'fit for work'' category. Providing occupational health services for public and private organisations, the Team was judged to have demonstrated a significant improvement in clinical outcomes for employees, and financial savings on sickness absences.

The Team was then pleasantly surprised to find that we had also won the top prize at the Society's awards, the 'Overall Best Physiotherapist/s of the Year Award'

Chair of Council Ann Green said the work being recognised had been an inspiration to others – whether they were patients, peers or fellow professionals

Director, Stuart Paterson, said "This Award means a great deal to the team, as it is recognition of their hard work and dedication in providing a high quality, friendly and effective physiotherapy services. It is also a wider reflection on the rest of our business and the great people we have on board"

Pictured from left above: Nic O'Brien, Gareth King, Ishmael Beckford and Stuart Paterson - overall winners, 'Fit for Work' team photo: Elsa Quarsell

Crystal Palace Physiotherapy
& Sports Injury Clinic

